

CRUI-Wiley agreement covers APCs open access license. Please be aware that some extra costs could be charged directly to the authors.

- ➔ If your article features one or more of the following services, their costs will be charged individually to the author:

Extra pages

Some e-journals can ask authors to pay a per-page rate based on the PDF or DOC file of an article accepted for publication

Colour image

An additional cost is usually required for coloured illustrations or tables

Cover image

Authors may require to publish an image of their work on the cover of the issue in which their article is published

Author reprints

Authors may request printed copies of their published article from publisher's Reprint Service

Video abstracts

As part of article promotion services, authors can purchase a brief video summary of their article. Visit Wiley Editing Services

The author may select these services during the submission or after the acceptance of the article.

These costs are considered as separate services and managed directly between Wiley and the corresponding author.

Each of these services is by request and invoiced directly to the author.

Wiley offers a range of services to prepare and promote articles including English language editing and video creation. Visit Wiley Editing Services.
